A program of celebration of the SEVENTIETH ANNIVERSARY of the beginning of the Unitarian Church of Davenport was held during the week of October ninth to sixteenth, 1938.

On Sunday, October ninth, we dedicated the new copies of "Hymns of the Spirit," which were bought by the members of the congregation as memorials to the founders of the church. In each copy is placed a slip which reads:

"These Hymnals are Given and Dedicated by The Members of This Church as a Token of Gratitude to the Founders on Its Seventieth Anniversary, October 9, 1938," together with the name of the donor of that copy. The Dedication Service was carried out with the help of a senior choir. Besides the hymns used in the usual places in the service of worship, four others were chosen for the dedication. Dr. Snyder spoke briefly in introduction of each hymn, and then the hymn was announced by one of the choir, in terms of dedication as follows:

By Mr. Vonder Heyde:

"And now in grateful memory and devotion for all that the pageantry of the years has brought us, gifts of the soul and gifts of brave example, we dedicate these books of song and praise to the founders of this church, with hymn number 146." (All Hail, the Pageant of the Years.)

By Mrs. Hansen:

"And now in the love of music and in worship of an infinite rhythm that sings from distant star to inner spirit, we dedicate these books of song and praise to the founders of this church, with hymn number 420." (O Sing With Loud and Joyful Song.)

By Mr. Mason:

"And now in the spirit that has abided in this place for three score years and ten, we dedicate these books of song and praise to the founders of this church, with hymn number 466." (We Love the Venerable House Our Fathers Built to God.)

By Mrs. Goenne:

"And now in grateful memory for prophets, poets, seers and wise men who have left us an inheritance of wisdom which the years cannot corrupt, we dedicate these books of song and praise to the founders of this church, with hymn number 421." (O Prophet Souls of All the Years.)

The meeting on Tuesday evening, October eleventh, was devoted to an historical and retrospective view. Mrs. Hilda Matthey read a paper of reminiscences and Dr. Charles E. Snyder reviewed the story of the birth of the church organization and of its sponsors. Mrs. Matthey's and Dr. Snyder's papers are presented in this printed form as a permanent record of the years that they survey.

MEMORIES

Mrs. Hilda Matthey

"All hail the pageant of the years
That endless come and go
The brave procession of the spheres
In time's remiatless flow,
Arise and crown our days with good
In glad exultant Brotherhood."

About 50 years ago, the Harmonic Chorus held its weekly rehearsals in the back room of the little unpretentious frame building, at that time the Unitarian Church. It was here, through its back door, I entered the church for the first time. A tall, shy girl, mostly arms and legs and long braids, a contralto voice and unlimited enthusiasm, I came to sing in the Harmonic Chorus. This chorus held its rehearsals in the Unitarian Church for many years. The beautiful windows in Unity Hall are a gift from the Harmonic Society.

In the old church there was a good sized platform on the east side of the room back of the church proper. Here, in this room the social life of the church centered. There was a square piano near the platform. It is still in the dining room. Well do I remember the very first time we heard mechanical music. It was quite an event! We all assembled in the little back room, while some enterprising spirit had secured the loan of the latest astonishing scientific discovery. It was an Edison Grammphone, big horn attached, and we were tremendously impressed, hearing reproductions of familiar musical selections by way of some rather scratchy records.

In this back room Prof. Theodore Cramer, tall, dignified and aristocratic, directed our chorus rehearsals. Prof. Cramer, a splendid musician, was in charge of the music for the services and it was surprising what lovely music his fingers coaxed from the little, rickety organ then in use. While serving my apprenticeship with the chorus, Mrs. John C. Bills, then the contralto of the quartet choir, became indisposed and Prof. Cramer asked me to take her place. Fortunately I knew Prof. Cramer since my childhood days, for he and his mother were family friends. But even after long acquaintance, I was always much impressed and awed by Prof. Cramer's personality, his reserve and dignity, intensified by his apparel, always immaculate, consisting of a Prince Albert coat, black bow tie, striped trousers and a high silk hat. It seemed very high to me.

The choir at that time was composed of Miss Hattie Fay, soprano; Mr. Knappe, tenor; Mrs. Bills, alto, and Mr. Hugo Braunlich, father of Mrs. Gude and grandfather of our Dr. George Braunlich, basso, with Prof. Cramer at the organ. So when Prof. Cramer asked me, a green young upstart, to join these seasoned veteran choir singers, I was much terrified but I shall never forget their great kindness to me. From then on my activity in the choir began and lasted for many years.

Because of my musical activities, so many of my impressions and reminiscences would deal with personalities and happenings along that line. But above all there was the guiding spirit and influence of our beloved Mr. Judy, whose understanding sympathy, gave us all courage and enthusiasm. It was due to Mr. Judy's love of music and his efforts, that the Spierring String Quartet appeared here in Davenport.

I cannot describe the joy and pride when we had our first service in the new church. The rickety organ had been replaced, but we still depended on a "hand pumped power" and so, on one memorable occasion when the choir was taking a long breath to begin the anthem, there was no sound from the organ, only a gentle snore. Our organ pumper had gone to sleep. During the time when Lillie Stibolt Hanssen, Wallace Moody, Louis Susenmiehl and I with Pauline Dittman as organist, sang together for several years, the young people of the church presented several operettas and the choir at one time gave the entire second act from the opera Martha, including the famous Spinning Wheel quartet and the lovely "Good Night."

Lillie Stibolt Hanssen, our soprano, had no more idea of being on time for rehearsals than a butterfly and oh—how often we waited and waited. Then she came, sang like an angel and all was forgiven.

Among other members of the choir during recent years were Meta Lerch, Amalia Schmidt Gobble, Bert Lovett and Daniel Webster. Our old friends Web Mason, and his sister Marion, now Mrs. Grilk, Lou Marks, Hum Hanssen, were a few of the particularly bright shining stars who helped make the presentation of our operettas such a success.

The operetta Princess Bonney still lingers in our memory. Unity Hall was the scene of much gayety and musical effort of great merit.

Some years after we had our new church, the Mason family had the organ rebuilt, tone and volume was much improved and there was no more need of a pumper,—we just pressed a button. Our good friend Mrs. Mathilde Koehler then came forward and all the lovely wood scroll work around the organ was her gift to the church. The generosity of Mrs. Koehler and of the Mason family meant much to all of us.

The loving kindness, warm friendship and loyalty of the members, is one of my most cherished remembrances. I could see my dear friends come down the center aisle of the church on Sunday mornings. To the left, occupying one of the front pews, I think the second or third row, sat Mr. and Mrs. John L. Mason, parents of our Mr. Webster Mason and Mrs. Grilk. Mr. Mason, slight, grey haired and dignified and Mrs. Mason, dainty as a Dresden figure, giving all of us a smile. Mrs. Mason's handiwork was renowned and much sought after at the Christmas Fair. And right near the Mason's sat Major and Mrs. Marks and the Morton Marks. Grace Marks was many years the wise and faithful president of the Lend-A-Hand Club. From my place in the choir I could look into their faces—the faces of all our good friends—the Deckers, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bills; sweet Mrs. Bills for many years the president of the Harmonie Society, never failed to give some praise to the choir. Our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Beattie still occupy the same pew, I believe. They often asked for the contralto solo—"But the Lord is mindful of his own" from St. Paul. It was a joy to sing for them.

Over near the center of the church sat the Hubbels, the Valentines, Goulds, Wheelers, H. H. Hills, Maria Purdy Peck, first president of the Davenport Woman's Club—and our good friends the Bollingers. I would see the Prestons come down the aisle, Charles Whitakers, Mrs. Brayton and the Hazens, the Perrys and Shories. The elder Shorey a member of the choir in the early days, and the Frank L. Smarts.

The library of the church is a gift from Judge and Mrs. Nathaniel French, in memory of Robert French. Who would not remember Clara Holmes, blessed with a gift of humor, who in later years resided in Massachusetts and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Winecke and their generous gift to the church. Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Brown, Mrs. Brown active in the church and in the Harmonie Society as its one time president. The Kunkels, Falk and Lamp families and Mrs. Brockett, who in the early days sang in the choir. Fanny French was always interested and then we have, I believe, our oldest member, our beloved and respected Emma Goos. There were the Huebotters, the Henigbaums, the Ficke family, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hinrichs, Mrs. Nolte and the Adelbert Riepe families. These are just a few of our old members whose loyalty, idealism and unselfish efforts laid the foundation to all this church stands for today. To the younger generation, I can only say "Carry On."

> Oh years, gone down into the past,
> What pleasant memories come to me of your untroubled days of peace and hours almost of ecstasy.

THE BEGINNINGS

By Dr. Charles E. Snyder

When a man approaches the job of preparing the history of a church there are three alternatives before him. He may write the story of events year by year and thereby write a book of several hundred pages; or he may review the outstanding affairs of the church and produce only a skeleton story, or he may devote himself to a few years in just one period. It is that last method that I have attempted. In the next few minutes, in other words, I am going to give you only the first few years of the history of the church. There are no official records of those first few years left; they were lost years ago. I have had to depend on old newspaper files and other sources for the most of this information. In doing this, of course, I am trying to present some of the events of the very early part of the church history and of some of the earliest church leaders. When I have done that there are going to be a good many that are left out.

On the 28th of June, 1868, this organization was begun following two sermons preached by Dr. Robert Laird Collier of Chicago. That was not the first attempt. The Rev. T. B. Forbush as early as 1856 made a survey, but he didn't preach. In 1865 the Rev. Thomas L. Eliot came up from St. Louis and preached. Eliot was the son of the Rev. Wm. Greenleaf Eliot, the first minister of the Church of the Messiah in St. Louis and grandfather of Dr. Frederick M. Eliot, now president of the American Unitarian Association. Thomas Eliot in 1866 went to Portland, Oregon, to establish a church there. In 1865 he preached here but nothing came of that. In 1867 the Rev. S. S. Hunting came from Quincy and preached here. He was a friend of Dr. D. C. Roundy, who, with W. H. Holmes, had organized a study class, and it seems that it was from this class that the invitation went to Dr. Collier to preach in June of 1868. I suspect that he answered with some eagerness for he was not a stranger to Davenport. He had been the minister of the 5th St. Methodist Church in 1858 and 1859. The building in which that Methodist congregation met still stands at the northeast corner of Fifth and Brady streets. In 1868 he was in Chicago, the minister of the Church of the Messiah, now known as the First Unitarian Church in Chicago.

Robert Laird Collier was one of the prominent members of the Unitarian denomination. He was born in Maryland and grew up among Methodists in which church he entered the ministry, first in Lowell, Mass., and then he came to the West. He transferred to the Unitarian Church during the period of the Civil War and became preacher of the Church of Messiah in Chicago in 1858, coming from New Brunswick, N. J. Both Dr. Collier and his wife were greatly beloved in Chicago and after her death in 1872, a tribute was placed on the record book to Mrs. Collier; and "it was voted that the chapel of the new Church of the Messiah be built as a memorial chapel to Mary Price Collier." She was a daughter of Hiram Price who had come from Pennsylvania in 1840 to Davenport to grow up with the little frontier town to prominence and position. He was elected to Congress five times from this Iowa district. He was a leader in the construction of the Mississippi and Missouri Railroad west out of Davenport and he was active in many kinds of organizations, church, civic, and otherwise in this city. Laird Collier and Mary Price were married at the 5th St. Church on Monday the 13th of December, 1858, with the Rev. Landon Taylor, a former presiding elder in this district and Methodist missionary to the western part of Iowa, officiating. Mary's sister Anna had earlier married John J. Dillon, known widely as one of the most brilliant minds that have ever resided in Davenport. The monument which stands in the street opposite the Lend-A-Hand Club was erected by Judge Dillon to the memory of his wife after her tragic death in a shipwreck.

One can rather imagine the interest in the city when it became known through the public press that Mary Price's husband was coming back to preach Unitarian sermons on that June Sunday. The Burtis Opera House was pretty well filled to hear him. He preached two sermons. THE GAZETTE reported on Monday, June 29th, that steps were taken toward organization of a church following the evening sermon. "Among the prominent names of those present were: Dr. E. H. Barrows, Judge A. H. Bennett, John L. Coffin, J. W. Guiteau, J. Galligan, E. A. Day, H. Darlington, Daniel Gould and A. Kimball. A committee of five was requested to consider further steps in the organization. The chair appointed Messrs. Darlington, Galligan, A. Kimball, W. A. Remington, and Dr. D. C. Roundy as such committee."

"The assemblage then adjourned until Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock when the meeting will be held in the Music Hall of the Opera House to hear the report of the committee. Dr. Collier offered articles as a basis of organization. Sixty-three men and women indicated a desire to become members of the proposed new church."

The meeting was held on Tuesday evening. According to the Gazette of Wednesday, July 1st, a large number of persons were in attendance. The Honorable A. H. Bennett was called to preside and Howard Darlington was chosen secretary.

"The following gentlemen were elected as a Board of Trustees: A. H. Bennett, Howard Darlington, John Galligan, Dr. D. C. Roundy, A. Kimball. On committees of Membership, Finance and Sunday School, the following were appointed: J. W. Guiteau, E. A. Day, John M. Dunn, J. S. Drake, John L. Coffin, Mr. Baumer, Mr. M. K. Parks, Dr. Roundy, Miss Dr. Irish, Mrs. Roundy, and Miss Clara Holmes. Twenty-eight ladies and gentlemen subscribed to the articles of the association."

These were the first names of the Unitarian organization in Davenport. I have asked a good many people who have lived in Davenport all their lives what they knew about these early Unitarian; and, alas, I have found that they were generally forgotten. Only here and there would one of the names arouse a memory. Consequently I set out to find out what I could about them.

Judge A. H. Bennett had come out from New Hampshire in 1856; he was a lawyer who had practiced in Lancaster in that State. He was fifty years old when he came to Davenport. Soon after he came here he served briefly as district judge so well that when he retired from the bench his colleagues gave him an unusual tribute. He was Mayor in 1872 and under his administration the city water works was inaugurated and the city market built in Davenport. He lived on 11th street near Iowa. He died in 1880 leaving a wife and family of ten children of whom I think none is living now.

Dr. D. C. Roundy was a practicing physician. I can find nothing about him earlier than 1868 except that he had served in the Union Army where he became a close friend of the Rev. S. S. Hunting. He had his office on the southeast corner of 4th and Main and he lived, in 1868, on Fourth near Harrison. There were two sons in the Roundy family, one of whom lived in Davenport until his recent death. Dr. Roundy continued as a source of energy and active leadership in the new church organization for several years, or until his death.

Howard Darlington was in the grain business; his home was on Brady near 14th. John Galligan was the local agent of the United States Express Company. He lived at the northwest corner of Perry and 14th streets, probably in the house now standing there in which the late Mrs. Dueser spent her last years. A. Kimball was superintendent of the Rock Island Railroad. In 1868 he lived at the Burtis House. His son, William Kimball, a Civil Engineer, still lives here, and a daughter, Miss Alice Kimball, resides in the East.

The name of J. W. Guiteau intrigued me. I had heard that the brother of Charles J. Guiteau, who shot President James A. Garfield on July 2, 1881, had at one time lived in Davenport, but I couldn't find out anything very definite about it except that the old newspapers of the period of which we are speaking carried large advertisements of his insurance business. Then suddenly those advertisements disappeared. There were some traditions about him but nothing very definite. Again the old newspaper files helped out. Going back to that July of 1881 when there was much excitement over the shooting of the President, I found in the Davenport Democrat the story of our J. W. Guiteau. The family were residents of Freeport, Illinois. John W. Guiteau, Jr., came to Davenport in 1856 and practiced law here until 1863. Then he entered the insurance business with the New York Mutual Life Company. He apparently made a big success of that and in 1869 the company transferred him to Chicago, and soon after to Boston where he lived when his unfortunate brother succumbed to his twisted mind and fired that fateful shot in the railroad station in Washington. Hence it seems that J. W. Guiteau was associated with our church for only about a year but he seems to have been active during that time. In 1859 he married in Davenport, a sister of James N. Tyner who was a member of the Congress from Indiana, Postmaster General in President Grant's cabinet, and Assistant Postmaster General at the time that his brother-in-law's brother shot the President.

J. W. Guiteau seemed to move around a great deal while he lived in Davenport. Almost every directory lists him in a different place of residence. In 1861 he lived on 11th street between Rock Island and Iowa. In 1867 he lived at Perry and 4th and in 1868 he boarded at the Newcomb House, which was the former LeClaire Hotel where the Putnam building is now. There is an interesting thread of relationship in this Guiteau story. There was a sister in the family who married, in Freeport, a lawyer. That lawyer become one of the defending counsel for his crazed brother-in-law charged with the murder of President Garfield. The minister who married the Guiteau girl to her lawyer husband was the father of our Harry E. Downer.

E. A. Day was a member of the firm of Luse and Day printers, with their place of business at 4th and Rock Island. He lived on the northwest corner of Iowa and 11th streets. There was a son George in that family who worked for the Rock Island Railroad Company but later went to Worcester, Massachusetts. John M. Dunn was a house painter who lived at 8th and Western. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn were English people who brought with them from the old country different things affectionately held in their family. Among them was a little old Bible bound in calico which is now in the Masonic Library in Cedar Rapids. Mrs. Cora Block has some small old photographs of Mr. and Mrs. Dunn. J. S. Drake was the local editor of the Democrat who wrote the story of the first meeting for that paper. He was a newcomer in Davenport whose enthusiasm for the new Unitarian movement carried him into eloquence in that article. The tradition is that the article stirred up a pretty warm discussion in the newspaper office, where one of the proprietors looked on it with orthodox criticism, and the other took a newspaper man's view that it was news. Drake's article was printed. He lived at the time at the Newcomb House. John L. Coffin was in the real estate business. He lived at the Burtis House. John H. Baumer was a member of the firm of Liverright and Baumer, wholesale dealers in liquors. He lived at the southwest corner of Harrison and 9th. M. K. Parks was a member of the grocery firm of Parks and Hosmer on the southeast corner of 4th and Brady, apparently where a large filling station now stands. Mr. Parks lived at the southwest corner of Main and Clay.

"The corner of Main and Clay streets" is a confusing term. Those streets are about a mile apart and they have no meeting place. I wondered how it came about that anybody lived at such a location until I discovered an old map of the city made at about the same time as that of which we are speaking, which indicates that the streets between Harrison and Brady now numbered from 11th to 18th, were then named streets. West 11th street was College avenue, West 12th street was College street, and so on until the present 18th street was Clay. The present Clay street was also on the map. Among these short named streets West 17th was called LeClaire and West 15th was called Elm, but the present LeClaire and Elm streets were also in existence. It must have been a bit difficult for strangers to find their way around in the city of Davenport in 1868.

Dr. E. H. Barrows was a native of Vermont who came to Rockingham in 1836. He was the first physician to settle in this neighborhood. In his reminiscences he says that he was the only doctor between Dubuque and Burlington and between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Ocean.

He also tells an interesting story of a call to the house of Antoine LeClaire in the fall of 1836 for a consultation with the army surgeon from Fort Armstrong. The army man was in a hurry to get away for the house warming ball of the new Davenport Hotel at the corner of Front and Ripley streets which was to be opened under the managership of a man named Powers. Dr. Barrows and the other physician disagreed as to the diagnosis. LeClaire finally told the other fellow to go on and let Barrows treat him. He pulled LeClaire through an attack of inflamatory rheumatism and got a big fee for it. When Rockingham petered out following Davenport's victory in the county seat contest, Dr. Barrows moved up here. He later built the large house with the Grecian portico at the northwest corner of 6th and Pershing where he lived until his death in March of 1892 at the age of 93 years.

Daniel Gould was a furniture dealer who lived on west 7th street, near Western avenue. There were two daughters in the family, Mary who became Mrs. Wing and Ellen who became one of the most active of the pillars of this church. It was she who held things together, particularly the Sunday School, during the period of 1878 to 1881 when there was no minister. She afterwards went to Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Gould served for a long time on the School Board of which he was president for several years and treasurer for several other years.

There was a Dr. Delila, or Delia, S. Irish who lived on Brady street near Elm (the present West 15th street). I can find little about her except that she had recently come from New York State and that she died in 1878 at the age of 36. Among the early Sunday School pupils was a Miss Frankie Irish whom I assume to have been a sister. W. H. Holmes lived on the river road, outside of the city limits, and is not listed in the directory. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes had an only daughter, Miss Clara Holmes. Mrs. Holmes was an invalid but Mr. Holmes and the daughter were among the real sources of energy and of leadership in the congregation. Miss Clara Holmes is remembered by the older members of our present society as one of the most earnest and dependable workers of a generation and more ago. Her last residence in Davenport was in the Fejervary apartments. She moved East early in the present century where she died about 1934.

In 1868 Davenport had a population of about 22,000 and it was the largest city in Iowa in those days. Des Moines had been started as an army fort about 1840 and had been made the capital in 1848; but it was still not much more than a frontier village in 1868. Sioux City was only fourteen years old and had not got out of the village class. Davenport was the promising city of Iowa. Still it was a small community and people talked a good deal about new events and occasions. The organization of a new church following the presence of Rev. Robert Laird Collier stirred up a good deal of argument. That story in the Democrat of Monday, June 29, 1868, provoked discussion about town as it had in the newspaper office. One or two paragraphs from the story will indicate one reason why people would talk about it.

"As announced, the Rev. Robert Laird Collier, of Chicago, preached to a large and appreciative audience yesterday in the Burtis Opera House. Probably no new religious movement ever met with such favor, or as large an audience ever assembled in this city for such a purpose, as that of yesterday. There are in this city a large number of our most influential citizens, of Christian character, members of churches and otherwise, who are daring to think for themselves in religious matters, and who will give this movement their hearty support, at least, such were the indications yesterday. There has been a desire on the part of many for some time past to organize a Liberal church, but this is the first well directed effort that has been made.

Dr. Collier has changed greatly since he left this city, not only in religious views, but in style and manner of presenting his subject. He speaks with a subdued earnestness, and presents his subject in a clear forcible manner, with words of no equivocal meaning, or with mystifying figures of rhetoric; but plain and straight forward, he strikes the key-note of popular feeling, upsetting old theories and overturning old dogmas and creeds. Broad and liberal in his views, granting to others what he claims for himself, he takes the Bible as a record of inspiration and not an inspired record. He reads it in the light of reason and judgment and interprets it with common sense.

The sermon yesterday afternoon was purely doctrinal, but nonetheless interesting. He took for his subject, "The Creed of the Liberal Church," speaking from the text, "Making the word of none effect through tradition." Mark 7:18.

At 8 o'clock the Opera House was again filled to overflowing. The sermon was entirely different from that of the afternoon, yet nonetheless powerful and effective. The subject was the "Nobleness of Truth," the text being, "And ye shall know the truth, the truth shall make you free." John 8:32.

It is quite evident from the various discussions that we have heard during the day that this movement will meet with some opposition, and that, too, from men who profess to be educated, and students of theology. Yet a large majority of our well-informed, independent, thinking men who have given such matters the least possible thought will assist, even if they do not take an active part. Many will doubtless hold up their hands in horror at the thought that the faith of their childhood must thus be invaded, and that old things must be disturbed and made to give place to the more beautiful, genial, soul-inspiring truths of a belief more in accordance with reason and nature; yet, if they would be happy in their creeds and dogmas, if they would be wise when ignorance is bliss they must keep clear of the field of discussion—and believe as 'tis written and as they were taught."

Following that enthusiastic start meetings seemed to have continued during the summer for Sunday, July 12th, the Rev. C. A. Staples, who then represented the American Unitarian Association in the west district, preached in the Bartis Opera House; and on Sunday, July 19th, the papers announced that Dr. Collier was to return for two services. The Democrat said on Monday, July 20th, of Collier's sermon, "The sermon in the Opera House yesterday afternoon by Rev. R. L. Collier of Chicago was largely attended. In spite of the heat and general inclination to stay home the number who assembled to hear this minister was large and comprised many of our leading citizens. The choir composed of Miss Rowse, Mrs. Bracket, Messrs. Jones and Winkless furnished excellent music with Mr. Burr officiating as organist."

For July 26th, the Rev. W. S. Haywood of Boston was announced, but there was no follow up story. On August 2nd the Rev. W. W. King of Des Moines was the preacher. August 9th there was no service. August 16th the Rev. Mr. McDaniels of Brighton, Mass., was the preacher. On August 23rd the Rev. F. E. Kittridge was announced. Then for the following four Sundays I find no announcements. For September 27th, the Rev. Nathanael Seaver of Boston came and he preached for that Sunday and the following one which was October 4th. On Friday, October 9th, I find the following newspaper paragraph:

"The First Unitarian Society of this city have extended a call to Rev. Mr. Seaver of Boston who has occupied the desk during the last four weeks. Mr. Seaver left for Boston on Tuesday but it is understood that he will return in the course of a fortnight with his family. His salary at present is $1,500.00. Mr. Seaver is a young man. His abilities are naturally of a high order. He is a graduate of Harvard, we believe, and has had several years of pulpit experience. He has an army record having served with credit in Virginia throughout the war. He will be warmly welcomed to a home in our midst."

Mr. Seaver accepted the call at a salary of $1,500.00 per year. He then went East to gather up his family and his goods and came back to begin his work in November, a work that was to last for five years of stupendous achievement over grave difficulties.

The Rev. Nathanael Seaver was born April 21, 1836, in Boston, the son of Nathanael and Ann Jane (Codman) Seaver, who later were members of the Church of Our Father in East Boston. As a young man in this church, and later, under the preaching of Dr. W. G. Eliot of St. Louis, Mo., he found the inspiration that directed his steps toward the Unitarian ministry, for which he prepared himself at Meadville and then at Harvard Divinity School, graduating there with the class of 1861. After his graduation he served several months with the United States Sanitary Commission, at Winchester, Va. In 1865 he married Marietta M. White of Littleton, Mass.

After a brief pastorate at Walpole, N. H., he caught the spirt of missionary enthusiasm and removed to Davenport, Iowa, where he established upon a firm foundation the First Unitarian Society and helped build its first chapel. Here he remained five years. Pastorates followed at Harrison Square, Melrose, Scituate, Marshfield, Templeton, Leicester and Pittsfield, all in Massachusetts. In each place, he, like many another devoted Christian minister, supplemented his church work with zealous efforts for the betterment of the community at large. In 1904 he retired from the active ministry, and lived at his old home in Scituate. He died in 1919.

The young society fell on difficult times, even during the period between Mr. Seaver's election and his return to take up his residence here. The hall expenses piled up unexpectedly. A bill for two hundred dollars a Sunday was presented. The proprietor had subscribed $250.00 to the support of the church but when he was asked for payment he explained that the subscription was intended to apply as a discount on the rent. The $1,200.00 that had been subscribed by the time of Seaver's election shrunk badly. The trustees sent him a statement of this unfortunate circumstance and suggested that perhaps he would rather not come under these conditions. He took the chance, however, for he had vowed he was going to build a church in the west.

The congregation moved to the lower hall in the Opera House which they got for $8.00 a Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Seaver moved into rooms and began housekeeping where they had proposed to store their furniture. It was a dark winter for the little group but they weathered it with the help of a check for $250.00 from the American Unitarian Association. In the spring of 1869 they got permission to use the Council Chamber in the City Hall, which was then located on the west side of Brady street between Fifth and Sixth, where the Oxford apartments now stand. They were given permission to use the room at very low rent and they stayed there for about two years. In spite of the dirt that accumulated through the neglect of the janitor, and in spite of the fact that their books disappeared, and in spite of a lot of other difficulties, the congregation increased and the confidence of the people grew immensely. There had come to Davenport Mr. W. J. Skinner, a Unitarian from Wisconsin. He was quickly made the treasurer of the new group and he brought to that office a skill and technique that helped a lot. Mr. Skinner afterward moved to North Dakota where he lived until his death.

The faith of the society grew so large that the members soon began to plan a new church. They gave fairs, the first one of which was in the winter of 1869, and they found other ways of raising money until they could buy the present lot, which according to the then naming of streets was at Ninth and Perry. Articles of Incorporation were filed February 16, 1871, with Dr. D. C. Roundy, M. K. Park, E. A. Day, John C. Bills, H. C. F. Jensen, George C. Hubbell, George H. French, "with others," were made the incorporators, the first five named being trustees. This introduces us to the Bills, the Hubbell and the French families. On February 19, 1871, the new church was dedicated at a cost of lot and building of about $6,300.00, of which about $800.00 remained unpaid. Mr. Seaver had collected about a thousand dollars from friends in the East, $500.00 had come from the American Unitarian Association, the rest had been raised among the members of the congregation and their friends and through their affairs and other functions.

It was fitting that Dr. Collier should be asked to preach the dedication sermon. After that sermon Mr. George H. French gave a hundred dollars towards the cancellation of the debt. Dr. Collier brought a check for $250.00 from members of his church in Chicago to be used for the purchase of a Sunday School Library.

In 1873 the building was raised and a dining room and kitchen were installed in the basement; and a Sunday School room added at the west end of the building. In 1897 a second addition, 23 feet by 24 feet, was built, making space for a kitchen and parlor upstairs. The present building was dedicated January 30, 1898, with the Rev. Mary A. Safford of Sioux City preaching the dedicatory sermon. Unity Hall was dedicated with a sermon by the Rev. Jenkin Loyd Jones of Chicago on February 2, 1898. For the dedicatory service the Rev. Frederick L. Hosmer, D.D., a close friend of Mr. Judy wrote a hymn which ought to be preserved in this record.

Except thou, Lord, our work sustain,
We build and labor but in vain;
Still to our calling hold us true,
And in us work to will and do.

Amid our daily toil and care
Be this to all a house of prayer,—
Of higher thought and holier mood,
Of larger faith and brotherhood.'

Here may our souls communion hold
With prophets and with saints of old,—
Here life in vaster measure see,
Time-shadows of eternity.

Thy Presence in each heart abide
To cheer, to strengthen and to guide;
And while we serve in glad accord,
Establish thou our work, O Lord!

The early membership roll is lost, of course, with all of the other records. I don't know how many members there were during those first two or three years. There were 28 signers on that first evening of June 20, 1868, some of whose names have already been read. But there were some others at those first meetings of whom we may be very sure that their interests and their loyalties were written into the beginnings. There were John L. Mason, and Mrs. Mason. Mr. and Mrs. Mason came from Canada in 1866. Their first home was at the northwest corner of 14th and Farnam where they lived out on the edge of town surrounded by woods. In 1868 they lived at 4th and Farnam streets. Mr. Mason's generous spirit helped over many a hard time, both with his financial assistance and with his unfailing hope and confidence. It was he who made possible the purchase of the organ in 1890 when it was bought in Cedar Rapids and also made possible its later rebuilding in 1914. The history of this church would have been very difficult down all the years had it not been for the Mason family even until this day. There were Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Valentine. They had come out from Ohio some few years previous. Mr. Valentine was of the firm of Noe and Valentine, brick masons at Harrison near 11th. The Valentines lived on Clay street, two doors east of Main next door to where Mrs. L. H. Valentine and Mrs. Hayes now live. Here also we have the fourth generation represented in Jane Hayes Johnson who carries on the family Unitarian tradition. There were Mr. and Mrs.

John C. Bills who lived on Perry street diagonally across from the present church site. Mr. Bills was a native of New York State who practiced law in Buffalo and came to Davenport in 1856 when he was thirty-two years old. He became one of the ablest and most prominent lawyers of this State. He served three times as Mayor of the city; was also a member of the State Senate, and was a civic leader in every sense of the term. He died in 1897. Mrs. Bills invested her interest and her energy and her loyalty in the Ladies' Working Society, in the Sunday School, and in the choir for many years. They had no children.

There was the J. C. Shorey family. Mr. Shorey had come out from Lowell, Mass. He was a manufacturer of pumps, located at Third and Main streets. That family have been with us down all these years effectively and loyally. The latest member of it is little Miss Linda Lee Shorey, a great grand-daughter who came into our Junior Church this fall at the age of three. Mr. and Mrs. George H. French were there at or near the beginning. They were natives of Massachusetts who came to Davenport in 1856. Mr. French was a brother-in-law of Bishop Lee of the newly created diocese of Iowa. The Frenchs started as Episcopalians but their religious thoughts changed and they became builders of Unitarianism in this city. Mrs. French was Miss Francis Wood Morton whose father was twice elected Governor of Massachusetts in the decade of the 1840's. They were a famous family in Davenport; it is not necessary to speak to Davenport people of Judge Nathaniel French, or the daughter Miss Alice who became famous as "Octave Thanet," or of the son Robert whose tragic early death cut off a promising life, and to whom our church door library is a memorial. In 1868 they lived in what we know as "The Drew House," at Pershing and Fifth. There were Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hubbell whose family have left an impress upon the history of this church down into very recent years. Mr. Hubbell was a native of Connecticut, a graduate of Yale, who came to Davenport in 1853 and finally became the oldest continuous practitioner at the Davenport bar. He was in practice fifty-six years. The Hubbells lived at Iowa and Sixth streets. Only recently have the descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Hubbell left us through the death of Charles H. Hubbell and his wife, both of whom have passed away in the last three years, and in the removal of Dorothy Hubbell Skelley from Davenport, all of whom left fond memories and places that we are unable to fill.

H. C. F. Jensen was an attorney who lived at Brady near Clay (W. 18th). I have been unable to find anything else about him. Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brown were leaders actively at work in the young organization for many years. They had come from Philadelphia and in 1868 they were living on the east side of Pershing avenue (then Rock Island street) between Third and Fourth streets. There were five children in the family who grew up in the Unitarian Church, one of them Ben, being now a resident of Chicago. Mr. Brown was a secretary at the Arsenal, and he also served for many years as secretary of the Scottish Rite Masonic bodies. Mrs. Brown was one of the dependable persons in the women's work in the church and in the Sunday School. The story is told of one of their little grand-daughters who was exhorted by her exasperated teacher to ask God to make her a better girl. The answer was quick. "I did; I met him this morning and asked him to do so and He said that he was doing the best he could."

Major M. L. Marks, who was for many years in the wholesale grocery business in Davenport, lived in 1868 at the northeast corner of Fifth and Western avenue. Later the Marks family lived for many years in the second house north of the Edwards Congregational Church. All of the Marks, young and old, were strongly active in the various organizations of the church. W. A. Remington was a merchant tailor with his shop at No. 3 W. Second, and his residence at Sixth and Iowa. H. B. Wheeler was in the feed business. According to the directory in 1860 the Wheelers lived on "Perry street, north of 10th." Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitaker were southern people who had lost the family property during the Civil War and had moved north at the close of the war. They lived at 10th and Iowa in the house later owned and occupied by Miss Alice French. Afterward they returned to the south and then moved to New York. There is one son, Spear Whittaker, still living.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Churchill lived on Oneida street, opposite St. Katherine's school. At the time of "The Big Fire" that destroyed everything in the region of Lindsay Park and over a considerable area north of that, their home was burned up. While the fire was raging they did not seem to realize the danger to themselves and Mr. John L. Mason came with his horse and buggy to take them out of the danger area. Mr. Judy lived with the Churchills for a time before he was married as he also did with the Whitaker family. Mrs. Churchill afterward lived with the Bollingers and she died in the house at Arlington and Kirkwood, next to the present Arlington Grocery building where our friends the Murphys preside.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Strong in 1868 lived at 5th and Perry, later at 8th and Perry, and still later in the 800 block on Tremont, where Mrs. Strong died as recently as 1931. Mr. Strong was a bookkeeper. He was known for his old fashioned formality of dress, the top hat, long coat, and cane. The Strongs were always on hand when there was anything going on that needed their help. Mrs. and Mrs. A. C. Shaffer lived in Rock Island in 1868 where Mr. Shaffer's business was located. Later Mrs. Shaffer became the matron of Fejervary Home. She was also for many years the superintendent of the Sunday School, during the 1880's and 1890's; and it thrived upon her leadership and earnestness. One of their daughters married a Mr. Stevens who was a prominent school man in Long Beach, California.

W. H. Pratt was the secretary of the Academy of Science and Letters and was the penmanship teacher in the public schools. There were two daughters, Frankie and Lucy, the former of whom still lives in Minneapolis. E. M. Thurston lived at 15th and Brady. The daughter Cora, was a member of the very first Sunday School class in August, 1868. She later became a teacher in old Number 2 school house where such young scape-goats in the second grade as Web Mason used to be greatly amused when she would receive calls from her best young man, a young physician who was starting to practice in Davenport. She married him a few years later and the wife of Dr. Lindley was one of the leaders of the church.

Mr. Seaver was here for five years, from November, 1868, to November 1st, 1873. Then the debt on the church property had been paid off, he felt that he had done the job for which he came, the establishment of the society and the building of a church which had been freed from debt, out in the Middle West. He resigned and was succeeded by the Reverend S. S. Hunting. Mr. Hunting seems to have come immediately after Mr. Seaver left with no interim of candidating.

I quote from an obituary. "Born March 22, 1826, in New London, New Hampshire, the ninth of eleven children of Israel and Lucinda Everett Hunting. He attended district school, then Colby Academy in his native town. His family were Baptists. At the age of sixteen he came in contact with Universalist preachers and found himself in accord with that philosophy. In 1849 he went to Harvard Divinity School. Three years later at the age of 26, he was ordained minister of the First Church in Brookfield where he served for six years as an efficient minister. He was three years at Manchester, New Hampshire, and two years in Detroit, Michigan. In 1856 he was married to Carrie E. Stowell who died two years later, leaving one son. In 1858 he married Julia M. Stevens of North Andover, Massachusetts, and they had two sons. In 1861 he was commissioned chaplain of the 27th Michigan Regiment, serving in Kentucky, Mississippi, Eastern Tennessee, and Virginia. The 27th Michigan was a famous fighting regiment, which crossed the Rapidan 1,200 strong and in the fighting at the Wilderness lost fifteen officers and six hundred men, more than half the whole regiment. It is recorded that the vigorous and devoted chaplain took no rest for three whole days.

Chaplain Hunting was mustered out August 4th, 1865, and soon accepted the pastorate of the Unitarian Church in Quincy, Illinois, where he remained until January 1st, 1871. For three years he was Western Secretary of American Unitarian Association. For five years he served the Unitarian Church in Davenport, Iowa. In 1880 he moved to Des Moines to take up, as he wrote, "a forlorn hope in the form of a small body of Unitarians in this city." After closing his pastorate in Des Moines in 1886, he was active in founding churches in other parts of the State and died in Des Moines June 2, 1894. Mr. Hunting possessed and used the power of a strong character. His nature was large and wholesome and manly."

When Mr. Hunting resigned in 1878, there seems to have been no move to call a successor. At any rate for nearly three years there was no resident minister. The pulpit was filled by supplies; the various organizations managed to go along their own ways. Miss Ellen Gould kept the Sunday School going with her famous leadership. Then in September of 1881 came a newly graduated preacher from Harvard to begin a glorious pastorate of twenty-six years. His name was Arthur M. Judy. His memory is blessed among us still.

I rejoice, as does Mrs. Matthey, in the pageant of the years, in the traditions and in the memories of devoted men and women who wove of their labor and of their loyalty and of their generous souls into the fabric of that pageantry. I never knew those men and women of seventy years ago, but it seems that I can reach backwards across the years and lay hold on their hands and feel the current of their enthusiasm thrill through my spirit. The results of their excellencies make it possible for us to meet in this spirit of birthday celebration and to hail the pageant of the years.

Letters of felicitation and of memory were received from:

We select excerpts from a few of these letters:

From Mrs. Florence Seaver Slocomb, daughter of first minister.

"As I was only five years old when my father left Davenport, my memories are very few, and all of a childish nature,—of my joy whenever Mr. Watkins took my father and me to drive in his buggy to his farm; of being punished by being sent to bed in the afternoon for some misdemeanor and of seeing from my room, the little girl who lived next door, out playing in her yard arrayed in a white dress and blue sash.

This was so alluring to me that I forgot I was being punished, and thought I would look as well, if I tied my best red sash around my nightie—and went out.

This I did, eluding my mother, and presenting the edifying sight of the parson's little daughter, skipping around in a flowing nightie with a red sash flying!

My memories are all like that—of trundle beds, and measles—and a children's play in the opera house!"

From Julius Lucht, Librarian of the Public Library, Newton, Mass.

"Although I have lived in quite a number of places since leaving Davenport in 1904, have belonged to several Unitarian churches west and east, and have been something of a church tramp at times, the old home church remains the one. It is always a pleasure to come back, and I have been most fortunate to have been able to do so sometimes for three or four years in succession, at least for one Sunday. I regret, therefore, all the more at having to miss the celebration.

"Your letter, of course, set me thinking, and lo and behold, was it not 49 years last winter that Charlie Grilk and I started out one blustery March morning to find out what kind of a Sunday School there might be up at Tenth and Perry? For a good while, our good friend, Miss Goos, had been inviting us to come up and we had stalled in the usual fashion. 'Oh, you know, we have been going off and on to several Sunday Schools in the neighborhood and, of course, at 15 and 16 we are too grown up for any further experimentation.' Finally Charlie said, 'Well, we just have to go at least once to please Miss Goos,' and go, we did. After the session, Mr. Judy said, 'Now boys, won't you come again,' and we replied, 'Oh, yes, we'll be back next Sunday.' You see it was a case of instantaneous conversion. You might almost say that we came to scoff and remained to pray."

From Harry Hansen, Literary Editor for the New York World-Telegram.

"My earliest association with the Sunday School of the Unitarian church goes back to the day when the congregation still worshipped in a wooden building that must have been a modification of the Hudson River Bracketed or cottage style of architecture. It remains dimly in my memory, for when I began turning the corner of Tenth and Perry daily on my way to the old high school, the brick building was already there. Around it cluster some of my most cherished memories.

"The Sunday School was alluring enough to make me put on a new tie and wash well behind the ears, and it was in Mr. Hornby's class that I could learn about Daniel in the lion's den and the Chicago White Sox in one and the same morning. I was always eager to go, and the only time when I played hookey was when an old Indian fighter stopped a group of boys outside the door and began telling them about the wounds he had received in numerous battles with the Sioux. Mr. Hornby was a little skeptical of his stories, but I hesitated to doubt an old man. In those days I was eager to write plays, and often pestered Mr. Judy with my frivolous schemes, to which that man, who possessed infinite patience with youngsters, listened carefully, and then made suggestions out of his own rich store of reading. I have memories of the friendliness of Webster Mason, Dr. Preston, and all the Fiekes, while the lad of my own age who left the greatest impression on me was Charles Reining.

"It is by recalling these adolescent days that I know that men are invariably kind to their fellows and generous especially to the young. As a lad I was by turns diffident and brash, and often tactless, and I still lacked a proper sense of values. It was in this early period that I attended both the Unitarian Sunday School and then sang in the choir of the Episcopalian cathedral, a feat that must have called for some kind of legerdemain. I recall the consternation of the Episcopalian rector when he discovered that the third tenor consorted with the godless, but he was appeased when he learned that I was not a member of any church. It was not until later that I came across Emerson's remark that in all unbalanced minds the classification is idolized and passes for the end. I did not remain long in the choir (besides my voice changed) but long enough to find out that all ways of worship had something beautiful about them, and I have since visited many churches, of many denominations, and felt that the basic emotion was universal good will."

From Mr. G. A. "Hum" Hanssen, architect of the present church building.

"Many times do I recall the harmony of the congregation—just like one large family, ever busy and cooperating for the best interest of the church, the Sunday School and for one another. The social activities were ideal and always enjoyable — the monthly suppers, the annual fairs, and picnics, moonlight excursion, dances, entertainments, choir rehearsals, etc., and now I think of the wonderful Sunday school party, 'Looking backward' and the harvest parties. Wish I could be there to talk about it all and to meet my old friends and your Dr. Snyder. I am certain you will have a joyous anniversary. Congratulations and best wishes."

From Mrs. Chester S. Wilson.

"I think the most inspiring moments I remember were those in which the Sunday School lined up, at the annual Christmas party, and marched into Unity Hall, to the big tree, singing "Onward the Call Now Is Sounding." It was a very big uplifting moment. Perhaps the most pure fun, when we were children and had no idea of the work mixed up with the fun, was the Annual Fair with its lovely cherry blossoms, the auction at which I think you always presided, and an occasional good slide on the long floor when the crowd thinned out—not to mention the turkey dinner. So I could go on and on."

From Mr. Herbert B. Tschudy.

"I am flooded with memories of my brother and of Davenport, itself, for a year of my early manhood was spent there and it was a memorable year in my life . . . .

"My brother's faith in humanity depended greatly upon two traits, both not too common, namely the will to work and the desire to deal justly and generously with our individual world. He hated sham in all things whether it had to do with highly specialized pursuits or with the every day business of life. Consequently, he demanded honesty of effort from everyone with whom he associated . . . .

"This Seventieth Anniversary Celebration is I feel, historically important to Davenport and it should increase your own faith in the great work of the church."

Mrs. Erica Riepe Davies.

"My earliest recollection, at about six, concerns the eager way I entered the Riepe pew every Sunday morning. It was fourth from the front, right. I always led the family. I still hope Mr. Judy thought it was my burning desire to get settled and listen to what he had to say. But it wasn't. On the other end of the same pew, fourth from the front, left, sat Miss Gould and Uncle Benny, Miss Gould liberally fortified with fluted colt's-foot sticks,—yet a deliency when I met them at the drug store, recently. Those sticks made me a willing parishioner during my early years, and I shall think kindly of Miss Gould for understanding her little pew-mate's weakness.

"About the same age—it was Fair Night. The curtain at Unity Hall was about to go up on a musical number. The excited soloists were Claire Nolte and the two little Riepe girls; the song "Columbus Sailed Across the Sea"; their costumes three somber Quaker frocks complete with aprons, kerchiefs and caps. Columbus began his sail, trem-ulously, and proceeded fairly tranquilly. We got to the place where

"God held the stars like candles bright
To guide Columbus through the night."

"Then sudden consciousness of one little girl's lingerie overcame her. She dropped suddenly out of the trio. 'Claire,' she whispered shrilly, as she pulled up her demure Quaker skirt, 'I've got crocheted lace on my petticoat.'

"Things I Shall Never Forget—Miss Haines singing "Palm Branches," the cherry blossom fair, Miss Pasche's efficient housekeeping behind the church-supper scenes, Mr. North's lessons in comparative religion, Miss Morgan's sympathetic inquiries, usually on Sunday mornings, regarding my homework in cooking (popovers, for instance), Mrs. Huebotter's genuine friendliness, Mr. Hinrich's regular attendance, my mother's loyalty to the minister, Mr. Welzenbach's welcome help to make a balky furnace heat on a particularly frigid Sunday, Mr. Snyder's sermon, when I came back to church with Sylvia Ann three years ago, and a fleeting thought as I sat in the old pew, that I was glad she resembled her father and her Riepe grandparents more than she did her mother.

"Here are greetings and good wishes galore for a happy anniversary week and for fruitful years to come."

From the Reverend Julius F. Krolfifer.

"So the Davenport church is about to celebrate its 70th anniversary. The record of these seventy years is, for all of us who have shared in them, a source of gratification and inspiration. Mabel, Estelle and I send to you and all our friends in the Davenport church our heartiest congratulations on the achievements of the past and our best wishes for the growth and increasing influence of the church in the future. We have rejoiced in the splendid leadership which you have given the church during these trying recent years, and in the courageous spirit manifested by the people of the church during the same period.

"We hold, and shall ever hold, in vivid and grateful memory, the experiences which we shared in the fellowship of the people of the Davenport church. The years we lived in Davenport were years filled with much satisfaction and accomplishment, not because of our efforts or ability alone, but because of the loyal and intelligent cooperation of many of the congregation in the life and work of the church. You have enjoyed, I know, a like cooperation from the members of the church, and therefore, your work has been so fruitful."

On Friday night, the 14th, was the banquet, at the Lend-A-Hand Club, where about one hundred forty persons sat down together to dinner. Judge J. W. Bollinger acted as toastmaster, introduced by Mr. Ficke, the chairman of the trustee of the church. The speakers were:

Mrs. Elizabeth Gude; Mr. W. L. Mason, chairman of the General Committee on arrangements for the Seventieth Anniversary Celebration; Mrs. Russell P. Wise, President of the General Alliance of the Unitarian Women, Boston; Dr. Alfred S. Nickless, First Presbyterian Church; Dr. Everett M. Baker, Executive Vice-President of the American Unitarian Association, Boston, and Dr. Snyder.

Then on Sunday morning, October 16th, there was the Anniversary Service, with Dr. Baker as the preacher of the Anniversary Sermon, with his strong and emphatic statement of the meaning of a Unitarian Church and its preaching.

And, finally, we can close this memorial no more effectively than with Mrs. Elizabeth Gude's original verses with which she closed her delightful talk at the banquet.

On looking back, how short they seem,
These three score years and ten!
They're filled for us with many a dream,
With heart aches now and then.

With hopes to make our burdens light
We'll pull together once again
With love to make the handclasp tighter,
Another three score years and ten.

The future hides the roads alluring
Which lead o'er valley and o'er glen
But faith will keep our hearts enduring
Another three score years and ten.

We hold the torch for those who follow
The pathway we have trod—and then
May trust and love their efforts hallow
Another three score years and ten.
